P3 Mr Michael	I want you to know for December 2013 exam P3 I got 71. I'm relief that I pass this time now that I have back confidence to finish remaining 4 papers. Will register P1 with ALC this monday (using the previous receipt) and still thinking which remaining paper to take. Michael had been helpful by giving questions on each syllabus to make sure we read his bluff notes (only that are relevant to exam questions). He loves confused students who ask questions, answering in simple wording of explanation, so i say he is very resourceful. He then provide commentary on each invidual answer on what we did wrong, how we should improve and give very useful general exam tips. His comments are really direct which I think plays an important role for final's preparation. And thank you Daniel for all your advices. :) - Qatralnaddia I'm very glad I passed my P3 with 73 marks. Very suprired about that as the result of my first attempt was just 39 marks. The answering technique (not the tips) that helped my passed the paper. I remembered that when I saw the questions for the first time, I almost fainted and thought of surrendering on the spot, but I made it at the end. VERY GLAD! I have also sent an e-mail to Michael and thanked him so much. All the best for ALC, and have a nice day!! - Joey Wong Micheal class is very engaging, unlike normal class that make u fall asleep. He make things very simple & right up to the point. He is friendly but emotional as well. Overall i find his class very helpful especially his self marking & self-set questions." – Ong Yi Xin Dear Mr.Daniel, I was lucky enough to score 51 marks for P3!! Thank you for Mr Michael's interesting lectures and great exam techniques!!! - Kimberly Wong Just wanted to say a big thank you for conducting such an enjoyable P3 course. What I really

	liked about it was not so much the content but more of the method by which you delivered the contents. Your core competence being how you managed to hold our attention for 6 hours and of course by relating to real life scenarios/companies made it all the more captivating. Makes me wonder Michael, how do you hone those skills ? I've been trying to hone them myself, by watching Toastmasters and public speaking videos but the improvement is rather slow :(how do you know all those hand gestures, when to pause, when to use a high tone/pitch ? Do you have any suggestions on how to get it right or did you participate in any NLP or public speaking programmes? I think this skill would be really useful as a management consultant in future when I have to present in front of a client. – Richmond Yau “I have passed my P3 paper with the score of 67. I believe that Michael has taught us with a very useful exam technique which is simply amazing for a working person like me. Warm Regards” - Norhayati Mokhtar Lecture hours have never passed by this quickly for me. Michael was able to keep us mildly entertained, and most importantly keep us calm because he ensures that we understand and assures us that he will be there to help us if we needed any assistance. He was flawless in his presentation and his experience and knowledge really gave the class a big booster. Lastly, you may want to keep inviting him over, Michael could well be one of your sustainable competitive advantage :) – Ivy Gan “Hello. P6 Ms Ong	I had passed my P6 :) Thanks to ALC and my P6 Lecturer- Miss Ong for always being supportive in all ways to help me succeed in this paper!!:) Really appreciate your effort! Definitely will sign up my last paper with ALC! – Ya Ling
F4 Edgar F5 Laurence	Hi Daniel / Edgar / Laurence I got 60% for both F4 and F5...just at border line :) Was a little disappointed because I was expecting around +70% for both papers as I answered all questions with confidence. I guess my mistake was that my answers could be too generic while missing out some details Nevertheless I passed the exam with both's help, thanks for the lessons :) - Lim Peng Khoon
F6 Assoc. Prof Faridah	Passed, 71% Prof Faridah's classes were very effective and easy to understand. She knew about the syllabus very well and I enjoyed her lessons overall. – Ching Wie F8 Ms Magdalene	Being a part-time and resit student. I find the F8 conducted by ALC beneficial to me. Firstly it provide me more practise of exam question at least 5 assignments in exam environment. The lecturer Magdalene focus lecture on application of principle to exam question from the beginning and make answering difficult one in simple way. With this I feel less pressure during exam time because it taught me to learn by understanding rather than memorising principles. At last and not least I thank and feel right to enrol and pass this F8 just attending ALC. THANKS” - M P Lam

F9 Mr Yoong	I sat for F9, I got 57-Pass, this was my first attempt, I joined Mr Yoong's class, he really helped me out especially on the theory part of the questions – Airina Syahirah
